Most preferred stocks

Domestic politics and geopolitical issues have remained the main theme in the run-up to the June 24 snap elections, while global conditions and volatility have eased to some extent amid the removal of the risk of new sanctions on Russia and encouraging developments in Korean Peninsula. While the CBT's latest 75bps rate hike and its ongoing commitment to tight policy stance has softened concerns over the TRY outlook to some extent, the new USD6bn economic package and the surprise rating downgrade by S&P have addressed populist policy making which could end-up with further deterioration in fiscal metrics, sticky low-double digit CPI and wider CA deficits. Even in such macro atmosphere, we see some arbitrage accounts still in the game to utilize earnings potential at the current cheap multiples; but, generally speaking, many investors have preferred to keep on their guard and stay on the sidelines with a bid for safety bias. Needless to say, heavy IPO agenda has weighed on stocks as well. All told, we continue to expect a wave of ro-ro (risk-on/risk-off) trades in the market, which in fact supports our core view that has suggested investors to stick to 'quality improvers' while taking no risk on 'conventional high risk/return plays'. With the glass half-full, we'd like to remind that most of negative news are already priced in as the benchmark index has been notoriously underperformer in MSCI EM in terms of 12M forward P/E, currently trading at 43.5% relative discount as of May 2 going into publication. Also, Turkish banks (XBANK) trade at a 42.5% discount to MSCI EM banks on trailing on P/BV of 0.62x at the time writing.

We maintain EREGL, GARAN, KCHOL, MGROS, PETKM, TKFEN, TRKCM, TSKB, TUPRS and YATAS

Eregli Demir Celik (EREGL, BUY, FV TRY12.66, Upside 25%)

- Increasing product spreads and steady volumes supporting operational profitability
- Favourable hard-currency cash position of the company

Garanti Bank (GARAN, BUY, FV TRY12.00, Upside 30%)

- We maintain Garanti Bank in our portfolio (as a low conviction call) on the backdrop of its solid fundamentals and strong 1Q18 financials
- The short term valuation trends continue to offer positive potential

Koc Holding (KCHOL, BUY, FV TRY19.28, Upside 41%)

- The stock is trading at a 17.1% discount to its NAV against a 5yr average discount of 3.6%
- The dividend income is likely to be doubled up in 2018 by possible upstreaming its whole refinery dividend to the holding level since the SPV debt is fully paid.

Migros Ticaret (MGROS, BUY, FV TRY35.20, Upside 54%)

- We like MGROS owing to its unique position in Turkish FMCG retail environment. High CPI environment and relative weakness of its supermarket chain competitors support the company's growth
- The integration of Kipa operations are on track, pushing margins higher and divesture of Kipa real estate may lower leverage despite TRY weakness.
- Short term indicators may also support the stock price

Petkim (PETKM, BUY, FV TRY9.10, Upside 27%)

- We continue to expect positive contribution from favourable product spreads
- The depreciation of TRY against USD should favour the operational performance going forward
- Future catalysts might come from the benefit from Petlim and Star Refinery investments

Tekfen Holding (TKFEN, BUY, FV TRY19.54, Upside 27%)

- Potential cash generations from contracting business especially from Al-Khor Expressway Project
- Agriculture segment continues to contribute positively in terms of operational performance
- USD based revenue generation supports the hard currency net cash position

Trakya Cam (TRKCM, BUY, FV TRY5.50, Upside 17%)

- Price increases in both domestic and international markets
- High capacity utilization with steady sales performance supporting the volume growth
- Decline in soda ash prices lowering the costs and improving the margins

TSKB (TSKB, BUY, FV TRY1.85, Upside 32%)

- We maintain TSKB in our portfolio (as a low conviction idea) due to the bank's sound fundamentals and strong 1Q18 expectations
- The short term valuation trends continue to offer positive potential

Tupras (TUPRS, BUY, FV TRY150.20, Upside 45%)

- Increasing product cracks and stable volume with high CUR supporting the operational performance
- Favourable FCF & Dividend yields.

Yatas (YATAS, BUY, FV TRY35.54, Upside 30%)

- We maintain our exposure in Yatas, on the back of promising growth prospects well supported by the wider domestic and international store network
- Along with the accreditation to the Turquality incentive program, international sales are expected to accelerate rapidly
- Further margin improvement along with the positive impact of new investment and robust balance sheet structure offers a catalyst

Portfolio performance

We started with a nominal portfolio value of TL10mn on 4th December 2007. We weighted the stocks we chose on a logarithmic basis. Hence, the amount invested in individual stocks is unlikely ever to vary by more than a factor of 2. For that first portfolio, our purchases amounted to TL9.97mn. From our initial figure of TL10mn, we have paid out total commissions of TL9.0mn so far.

Rebalancing is made for those we maintained in our portfolio.

The long-term performance of our model portfolio is measured as follows. Our purchases and sales are done at the average prices for the session, and performance is relative to the closing BIST-100 levels. Moreover, we also track the performance of the portfolio had it been implemented not in the trading session of the date on which we issue these reports, but also during the two subsequent trading sessions. Hence, we have six measures of relative performance, which should illustrate not only the performance of our portfolio, but also what would have happened had any clients chosen to act on it. Activity is assumed to have been done at an average trading price and valuation as at the close.

Exhibit 3: Current price and relative performance since inception

	Closing 30.04.18 pm	Relative performance 04.12.07 am	Relative performance 04.12.07 pm	Relative performance 05.12.07 am

BIST100 performance	104,283	91.80%	93.07%	91.20%

Source: FINNET, Global Securities

Allowing for commissions so far, our portfolio has outperformed the BIST100 index by 272.2% since inception. Had it been replicated in the first trading session after it was issued, allowing for commissions, we would have outperformed by 269.6% since inception; and had it been replicated the next trading session, we would have outperformed by 273.1%.
